

Sozialer Fortschritt 06-07/2022

IT, Big Data and algorithms in social service organisations: opportunities and restraints for street-level workers

Gasteditor:innen: Martin Brussig und Ida Bring Løberg

Martin Brussig und Ida Bring Løberg, Editorial

Merita Mesiäislehto, Minna Kivipelto und Minna Ylikännö, Social assistance beneficiaries' access to social services in a digitalised social assistance system

Ylva Wallinder und Ida Seing, When the Client becomes her own Caseworker: Dislocation of Responsibility through Digital Self-support in the Swedish Public Employment Service

Daniela Böhringer, Zwischen Selbst- und Fremdbestimmung: Stellensuche digital

Kathrin Hartmann, Exploring new challenges for street-level bureaucrats through the implementation of ADM systems

Karolina Sztandar-Sztanderska und Marianna Zieleńska, When a Human Says “No” to a Computer: Frontline Oversight of the Profiling Algorithm in Public Employment Services in Poland

Diana Schneider, Angelika Maier, Philipp Cimiano und Udo Seelmeyer, Exploring opportunities and risks in decision support technologies for social workers: An empirical study in the field of disabled people's services